ABSTRACT

A system for generating live components for use on target systems is disclosed. The target systems may include browsers and embedded systems. The disclosed invention may operate on a multitude of data types (numeric and non-numeric), be used by non-programmer developers, generate "live" components capable of active mathematics, graphics, string processing, input, output and linking.